FINE ART PHOTOGRAPHY

The camera becomes the brush through which Palmera paints a new vision of reality. Light, form, movement and time come together in a surprising and unanticipated composition of contours, colors and textures. His work is an unexpected sensory exploration that will arouse our conventional perceptions and predictable reality.

Palmera's photography is conceived through intentional camera movement and the interaction with the subject embracing part calculation and part chance. These are not computer generated images. His work ranges from small and large scale prints in non-traditional mediums including installations. He engages an exploration to take the photograph to a three-dimensional format by blending photography and sculpture together.

*'I go beyond what is commonly seen with the naked eye
by manipulating the camera to achieve desired effects, all the while embracing unexpected results in its process'*

BIOGRAPHY-

Born in Bogota, Colombia, 1975.

Studied architecture at Los Andes University in Bogota, and at Catholic University of America in Washington, DC where he lived and practiced for 13 years. In 2009 he began traveling extensively worldwide pursuing his life-long passion for photography.

His photography is inspired by the built environment, nature and still life subjects from places where he traveled. As an architect, he has a deep interest using non-traditional materials as substrates and creating installations. In particular he explores the concept of bridging photography and sculpture together. The photographs are not computer generated. How he shoots is what you see.

Lives in Miami, Florida.
